Re: Project Manager, Rail & Transit

Dear Hiring Manager,

I would like to apply for the Project Manager, Rail & Transit position in Toronto. I am an Assistant Planner in Transportation Planning at the City of Toronto, and before that I was a Transportation Planner at Metrolinx in GO rail service design.

At the City I run assigned projects from scoping through to recommendations, planning the work, holding the schedule and quality myself, and reporting progress to the people relying on it. I review the studies consultants and applicants submit against City standards, coordinate with divisions, consultants and outside agencies, and write the briefing notes and presentations that carry issues and options to senior staff.

At Metrolinx I ran OpenTrack simulations of GO rail services and assessed what temporary and permanent slow orders would do to service. I also set up a command line workflow that pre-simulated slow orders in batches, cutting turnaround on scenario requests from days to hours, and built the Crew Variance Tool, a Python application that read large JSON operations files and summarised speed profiles and run-time variance across subdivisions. At Mott MacDonald I ran Synchro traffic simulations of Ontario Line construction staging.

I should be straightforward about the gaps. The posting asks for more than ten years in rail, transit or transportation infrastructure and experience managing complex multidisciplinary delivery; I have about four and a half years, and I have not managed design, procurement or construction, budgets, invoicing or change orders, or led business development. I do not hold a P.Eng. or PMP. If the team is hiring at a coordinator or project engineer level in rail and transit, I would welcome being considered.

Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Abdullah Al Zahid
