You'll play a key role in delivering innovative airside and landside solutions for public, private, and First Nation clients—helping to build safe, efficient, and future-ready aviation infrastructure.

Your Impact

- Lead aviation planning studies to support airport capacity, demand forecasting, and operational improvements

- Develop airport master plans, land use strategies, and terminal/airside layouts that support sustainable growth

- Design and produce technical drawings using tools such as AutoCAD, Civil 3D, CAST, and AviPlan

- Conduct aeronautical impact assessments, meteorological studies, and construction operation planning

- Prepare compelling proposals, technical reports, and visual materials to communicate complex findings clearly

- Engage stakeholders through presentations, consultations, and collaborative planning processes

- Build strong relationships with clients, regulatory authorities, and project teams while supporting project delivery

- Contribute to continuous improvement and innovation across aviation planning projects

The Skills That Set You Apart

- University degree or diploma in planning, transportation engineering, aviation management, or a related field

- Strong knowledge of airport airside, landside, and terminal operations

- Proven ability to manage multiple concurrent projects and priorities effectively

- Deep understanding of aviation regulations and standards, including CARs, Transport Canada TP312 (4th & 5th Editions), TP1247, and ICAO guidance

- Proficiency in AutoCAD and Microsoft Office Suite, with experience in aviation planning tools considered an asset
