Re: Project Manager, Adjacent Construction Review - Adjacent Development

Dear Hiring Manager,

I would like to be considered for the Project Manager, Adjacent Construction Review position. I am an Assistant Planner in Transportation Planning with the City of Toronto, and from February 2023 to January 2024 I was a Transportation Planner at Metrolinx, so I know the operating railway the corridor protection work is meant to safeguard.

At the City, much of my work is reviewing development applications and the transportation studies filed with them, recommending conditions where something is missing, and working issues through with divisions, consultants, applicants and outside agencies whose priorities conflict. At Metrolinx I assessed the effect of temporary and permanent slow orders, which are what construction beside an operating railway imposes. At Metrolinx I set up a command line workflow that pre-simulated slow orders in batches, cutting turnaround on scenario requests from days to hours, and built the Crew Variance Tool, a Python application that read large JSON operations files and summarised speed profiles and run-time variance across subdivisions.

I should be straightforward about the gaps. I am not a Registered Professional Planner and I do not hold a PMP. I have not managed third-party agreements or construction agreements, supervised staff, or written terms of reference or tender documents for consultants. I do not have a Class G licence, and I have not taken the Canadian Rail Operating Rules course. My review experience is on the municipal side of the Planning Act process, not the transit-agency side, and I have not enforced permit conditions on site.

Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Abdullah Al Zahid
